

Christmas Celebration: 5th Grade

Narrator: The Three Kings decided to have a Christmas celebration. They invited Santa Claus and his helpers: elf, gingerbread cookie, snowman, and, last but not least, Rudolph the Red Nosed Reindeer! They sent a letter on Christmas Eve that read:

Melchior:

Hello!

Today we will have a Christmas celebration to decide what presents will be given to the children of Galicia. The celebration will be held in Bethlehem. See you soon!

From, Melchior

Narrator: All the guests arrive at the celebration and sit around a wooden table.

Santa Claus: Before we make any decision about the gifts, we need to have some food because Christmas and food always go together. Plus, I am hungry! Ho, Ho, Ho!

All the guests: Yay!

Narrator: Caspar goes to the kitchen to get the food to eat. There, he finds the gingerbread cookie who is feeling left out.

Gingerbread Cookie: Hey! What's the big idea? Why am I not being included in the celebration? Am I not important to Christmas?

Elf: That's not true. All of the Christmas characters need to be at the celebration! Didn't you get an invitation?

Gingerbread cookie: No I didn't. (The cookie begins to cry)

Elf: Don't cry gingerbread! I am inviting you now! Please join us.

Narrator: The elf, gingerbread cookie, and Caspar help Melchior to carry in the food, drinks, and desserts from the kitchen.

Melchior: Come on everyone! Let's eat. Hurry before all the food is gone!

Narrator: Everyone at the celebration eats the delicious food brought by the three kings. There is rice, lobsters, cod, clams, and prawns, too! Yummy!

Balthasar: What a yummy meal. I am going to get a fire going to make it nice and cozy in here.

Narrator: As the room heats up, the snowman begins to melt.

Snowman: Help! I am melting! It is too warm in here! Please help me!

All of the party guests run over to help the snowman.

Angel: I can freeze you again using my magic powers. Where is Rudolph? I need his help.

Rudolph: I'm right here! Don't worry, Snowman, we will get you back into shape again in no time. Stay calm!

Narrator: While Rudolph and the Angel help the snowman, Caspar walks over to look at the Christmas tree who was looking very angry.

Christmas Tree: These baubles are so ugly! Ugh! Why did you use these old ornaments? I wanted to be so beautiful this year, but I will never feel pretty with these ugly things on me. Grrr!

Caspar: I am so sorry, Christmas Tree, but these are the only decorations that we have and there is no time to get more. If only we had a star so we could make a wish!

Christmas tree: Wait! I can ask my friend Star to help! Then, we can wish for new decorations.

Caspar: That's a great idea.

Christmas Tree: Okay, repeat after me:

Together: Star, Star, you are so bright. Please grant my wish and make things alright.

Christmas Tree: And please also give happiness to all for Christmas.

(The star enters and grants the wishes.)

Narrator: Suddenly, the ornaments became shiny and new and everyone was filled with joy.

Rudolph: Wow! I feel so joyous! We should share this feeling with the children of Galicia.

Elf: Perfect timing! The gifts are all ready! Let's go!

Narrator: The guests leave to deliver the presents and spread joy to all of the children of Galicia and their families.
